

2002 Spring Conference
April 11-12
Columbia Basin College, Pasco, Washington

"Experience the Power of Collaboration: Creating Relationships with Faculty"

Jointly sponsored by the:
College Librarians & Media Specialists (CLAMS)
Library Media Directors Council (LMDC)

Explore and enhance your ability to build successful collaborative relationships with faculty on your campus as you expand your knowledge of collaborative projects. Collaboration experts Dane Ward, Milner Library, Illinois State University, and Dick Raspa, Interdisciplinary Studies Program, Wayne State University, will help you transform your collaboration dreams into an institutional reality. Generate strategies for persisting in collaborative endeavors and devise plans for building collaborative environments at your institution. Learn about and practice the essential components of Collaboration as you are guided through the "Five P's of Collaboration": passion, playfulness, persistence, (having a) project, and promotion.

Dane Ward and Dick Raspa are the authors of the best-selling ACRL book "The Collaborative Imperative: Librarians and Faculty Working Together in the Information Universe."

Acknowledgements

Thanks are due to many people, most notably to: Stephen Badalamente and Drew Proctor (Site planners), Esther Sunde (President), Adrienne Julius (President Elect), Syd Sullivan (CLAMS treasurer/registrations), Joanna Tillson (CLAMS secretary), Leslie Potter-Henderson (CLAMS editor), Elena Bianco and Paula Palmer (CLAMS Past Co-Presidents), and of course, to our presenters. Special thanks to our hosts at Columbia Basin College Library.
